

NEWCREST MINING

ESG CASE STUDY

Newcrest Mining's operations help contribute jobs and investment in the communities around them, while proudly producing the minerals needed for a better future, for use in smartphones, medicines and greener power grids.

For Newcrest, that's just the start of our efforts to support local communities.

The communities where we operate mean a lot to us and are where our people live, work and play. Having strong communities means we can be our best as a company, which is why we created the Newcrest Sustainability Fund.

The Fund is our way of working in partnership with local people and organisations around the world to deliver meaningful change, developing and investing in projects and programs that are designed for the community, by the community.

It operates based on the key criteria of strategic alignment with Newcrest's growth strategy and sustainability ambitions, transparent reporting, robust governance, measurable positive impact and outcomes and leveraging existing and new partnerships for efficiency.

For consideration under the fund, projects must also include clearly defined project management objectives, outputs, and milestones, delivering long-term sustainable benefits to the communities in which we operate.
